If you have ever tried to make sense of what the leftists are saying, then you know it can be difficult. Socialism is like “capitalism for dummies”. The capitalist will support a relatively free, organic economy where accountable government maintains a level playing field. The socialists are saying they want the government to control everything and then distribute the wealth, what could go wrong?

The big problem is human weakness and since “nobody steals like the government”, after we have surrendered our options to increasingly authoritarian rule, we would be doomed by this hierarchy and its corruption. Personal efforts are flatlined to the point that creativity and prosperity become taboo or criminal acts. Don’t believe me, talk to any Cuban who has lived under their system. Years in prison for having more than your rationed food supply, and if anything is stolen under your watch, you go to jail. There is no wiggle room because the neighbors are watching, and you can’t un-elect these guys.

Here is a better option, and before it’s too late, we can start researching the people we are voting for. If we keep electing these political puppets, our system also becomes weak and amoral. Many politicians are compromised before they are ever selected office and they will pass legislation not only for personal enrichment but also for self-preservation. We need verifiable “think tanks” to analyze public officials and post their statistics, just like any other pro ball player. (BTW, not voting is a vote for the other guys). The Left will howl at this suggestion because that would be, too much free press.

Conservation is such a nice word if only we would apply it to ourselves? The socialists are like union organizers promising everyone, free money, free education, free healthcare, mandated job security, ridiculous pensions, and shorter work weeks. Who’s not going to vote for that! no matter how corrupt the administration or unsustainable the math. If it were not for the fact that this kind of elite leftist campaigning is used to enslave or destroyed entire generations, no one would ever complain.

We sacrifice our time and energy for some sort of monetary gain and anything else is unsustainable. Meaning without that sacrifice we are stealing or begging or borrowing those monetary resources from someone else, with or without their knowledge or consent (it’s just math). Now, if we are being lied to and not making that connection we need to worry a little about the people who are running the show, the same people we may have been persuaded to vote for. Without political accountability, oversight and the ability to prosper in open markets, it becomes a world of a richer elite, massive poverty and corrupt administrations all looking for a bigger piece of a shrinking pie.

Never give up the vote 😊
